School students ask brilliant questions. Are you up for answering them?

Five engineers put up profiles on our website, answer questions and have live online chats with school maths, D&T, and science students. Students vote and one engineer in every zone wins a prize of £500 to communicate engineering to the public.

"If you can't explain what you're doing to someone who's 15 years old, you probably don't know what you're doing yourself"

Neil Dhir, University of Oxford
